MULTI PAGE STATIC WEBSITE USING SEMANTIC HTML5

AIM:

To design and develop a creative and user-friendly multi-page static website using semantic HTML5 elements.

Procedure

1. Create the project folder: Create a folder named Hotel_website to store all HTML files and related images or media resources.

2. Design the Home Page (home_page.html): Use header for the hotel name, nav for links to all four pages, main and section for the welcome message, and footer for copyright information. Purpose: Introduce the website and provide access to the other pages.

3. Design the Room Page (room.html): Use header and nav for the common heading and navigation. Use section and headings to organize room details, ul/ol for course highlights, and table, tr, th, and td to show room type, facilities, and price. Purpose: Present courses in a clear, structured format.

4. Design the Booking Page (booking.html): Use form to collect guest information. Use label, input, select, textarea, and button for form controls. Include suitable input types such as text, email, tel, and date, and use fieldset and legend to group related fields. Purpose: Collect guest booking details.

5. Design the Contact Page (contact.html): Use header, nav, main, section, and footer for a consistent structure. Use ul and a for learning resources and links. Purpose: Provide contact details

6. Implement page navigation: Add hyperlinks using a element and suitable href values on every page so users can move between all four pages.

7. Apply visual presentation: Use HTML elements to structure content and, where permitted, CSS to provide colors, spacing, alignment, borders, and an attractive design.

8. Test the website: Open home_page.html in a browser. Check that all four pages load, navigation links work, images and media display, and content is aligned neatly.
